

Mentor Recruitment:

Become an Online Mentor: Opportunities available

How good would it be for you, a person with expertise in the medical laboratory industry, to be the one person who could make a difference in the life of an internationally trained individual? Imagine what must it be like to be a skilled MLT, new to Canada, looking for work and not be connected?

As a mentor your role is not to find the mentee a job, but to assist them to understand the labour market, industry trends and the Canadian workplace culture. In turn, you will benefit by enhancing your leadership and communication skills, your understanding of cross-cultural interaction and your professional profile.

JVS Toronto, a non-profit organization that assists internationally trained individuals with employment, www.jvstoronto.org, is seeking volunteer mentors working across Canada for our online mentoring program. We match experienced people with newcomers in the same or similar occupational field.

Mentoring takes 10 weeks and we require that you keep in touch with the mentee at least once or twice a week.

To become a mentor please register directly at www.canadainfonet.org or contact Diane Brockman, Mentoring Coach, at dbrockman@jvstoronto.org or at 416-649-1603. Thank you!
